

The Docklands & East London Advertiser

MEMS on the 65-67 AMSTER
LONDON
RESERV
020 753
Order online: ord
www.mem

ARCHANT }

eastlondonadvertiser.co.uk

Thursday March 27, 2014

Masters students help staff out

Two post-graduate students working on their Masters degrees in social work have been helping the staff at Cyril Jackson primary in Limehouse.

Charlotte Series and Abie Aigbe, who are studying at London South Bank University, are both on 70-day placements during the spring and summer terms. Their stay at the school takes them up to the summer holiday in July, offering support and help where it is needed.

Abie and Charlotte are working to support the families as well as the children themselves as part of their studies. They even arrange appointments to meet parents or carers to have a chat in the school office.

It is the third year the school in Three Colt Street is supporting South Bank University by providing facilities for practical social work.

Cyril Jackson also played host this term to a third visit of educational leaders from Sweden's Centre for School Development.

The Swedish visitors were impressed with the way the school's ICT facilities are used to inspire teaching and learning.